EX PARTE

Re: CC Docket Nos. 96-98; 98-79; 98-103; 98-161; CCB/CPD 97-30

Dear Chairman Kennard:

As the Commission deals with the jurisdictional questions surrounding dial-up calls terminating to information service providers (ISPs), MCI WorldCom believes the Commission must make clear that reciprocal compensation must continue to be paid for traffic exchanged between incumbent local exchange carriers (ILECs) and competitive local exchange carriers (CLECs) serving ISPs as end user customers. The financial consequences for CLECs, and ultimately the customers of CLECs and ISPs alike, are grave if the Commission stays silent on this issue.

The attached documents offer one concrete demonstration why the Commission must do all that it can to remove any ambiguity concerning the validity of existing reciprocal compensation arrangements. These documents include an unsolicited proposed settlement offer from BellSouth to MCI WorldCom's MCI Access Transmission Services, Inc. division, and MCI WorldCom's written response. Although BellSouth's cover letter of November 5, 1998 claims a negotiation and an agreement to keep discussions confidential, MCI WorldCom's response clearly indicates that it neither entered into any negotiation, nor agreed to keep any discussions or materials confidential.

Under the terms of the proposed settlement, BellSouth would agree to pay its outstanding debts owed for reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic under the companies' interconnection agreement at no more than 15 cents on the dollar. The offer was only valid if agreed to before 12:00 noon on Thursday November 5, 1998, or before the Commission released an order addressing reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic.

As you can see from these documents, concerns of MCI WorldCom and other CLECs are not at all unfounded. BellSouth, and undoubtedly other ILECs, are eager to take advantage of any uncertainty or ambiguity surrounding these questions in order to wreck havoc on existing contractual arrangements with CLECs. The Commission's failure to articulate, clearly and unequivocally, that all reciprocal compensation obligations must be fully met will create very serious consequences for CLECs, in terms of both continuing and maintaining current operations and meeting business plans by raising necessary capital to build out networks.

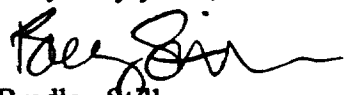

As related in previous filings and correspondence, MCI WorldCom's position on the question of the jurisdiction of calls terminating to ISPs, and ILEC obligations to pay CLECs for such calls, is clear. As it is impossible to "call the Internet" directly, MCI WorldCom maintains that only one call is involved -- from the end user to the ISP -- with the ISP subsequently providing enhancements necessary to route these calls either locally, or over separately-purchased interstate facilities to the Internet. In short, the entire transmission consists of one local exchange call and a jurisdictionally separate and distinct interstate or intrastate information service.

Should the Commission not adopt MCI WorldCom's view of the jurisdictional nature of traffic terminating to ISPs, in the alternative MCI WorldCom supports the so-called "mixed jurisdiction" legal theory espoused in recent ex parte letters filed by ITAA and ALTS (Letter from Jonathan Nadler to William Kennard, CC Docket No. 96-98, November 5, 1998, at 2-4; Letter from Jonathan Canis to Magalie Salas, CC Docket No. 96-98 et al, November 13, 1998, attachment at 1-2). Under this theory, because traffic to ISPs is both jurisdictionally mixed (interstate and intrastate) and inseverable, the FCC can assert federal authority over dial-up ISP-bound traffic, while at the same time deferring to decisions by state public service commissions -- including those concerning reciprocal compensation -- which do not negate valid federal policies. As a result, the Commission can state unequivocally that the decisions of 24 state commissions requiring the ILECs to pay reciprocal compensation are to be left undisturbed by any jurisdictional ruling.

However the Commission decides these important legal and jurisdictional questions with respect to dial-up traffic to ISPs, the larger goal should not be lost. MCI WorldCom urges the Commission to make crystal clear that, at minimum, the decisions of 24 state commissions obligating the ILECs to pay reciprocal compensation under existing interconnection agreements are not to be disturbed.

Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions.

Very truly yours,

Bradley Stillman

Dear Mr. Finlen:

This is in response to your letter and accompanying settlement agreement dated November 5, 1998 regarding reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic.

MCIm finds your proposed settlement unacceptable. MCIm fully expects BellSouth to pay 100% of what it owes MCIm for reciprocal compensation of ISP traffic as called for by the Interconnection Agreements between BellSouth and MCIm. MCIm would also expect BellSouth to pay, as part of our normal business practices, any interest or late fees.

In addition, the statement in your letter that we agreed to keep negotiations on this issue confidential is inaccurate. In the first place, we did not enter into negotiations; BellSouth simply communicated an offer that MCIm has rejected. More importantly, we did not agree to keep our communications confidential. MCIm reserves the right to disclose those communications as it deems appropriate.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Schmidt:

Enclosed is an agreement for your review. In accordance with our agreement to keep this negotiation confidential, please do not disclose this document or the contents of this document to any third party.

This agreement represents an offer which will remain open until either 12:00 noon ET on Thursday, November 5, 1998, or until the FCC releases an order addressing reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic, whichever is earlier. This agreement, signed by MCImetro Access Transmission Services, must be received by me no later than 12:00 noon ET on Thursday, November 5, 1998 if MCImetro Access Transmission Services elects to execute the agreement.

Sincerely,

Representations, Terms and Conditions

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, MCI is involved in the Subject Cases alleging that BellSouth breached the Interconnection Agreement by failing to pay reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic, and;

WHEREAS, BellSouth denies that it owes reciprocal compensation under the terms of the Interconnection Agreement as ISP traffic is interstate in nature, and;

WHEREAS, The Parties desire to terminate the multiple legal proceedings arising out of The Parties' respective interpretations of the Interconnection Agreement, and reach a full and final compromise of all matters and issues in the Subject Cases, and;

WHEREAS, the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC"), on October 30, 1998, issued a Memorandum Opinion and Order in which it held that an ADSL tariff offering filed by

GTE was interstate in nature and indicated that it would release an order within the week as to whether ISP traffic is interstate in nature, and;

WHEREAS, The Parties anticipate that the FCC will rule on the reciprocal compensation for ISP traffic issue in the immediate future, and;

WHEREAS, The Parties seek to establish a new working relationship going forward;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual agreements, undertakings and representations contained herein, the payment of the amounts set forth below, and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, The Parties agree as follows:

Specific Terms

BellSouth will pay fifteen (15) percent of the total amount BellSouth withheld from payment to MCI for reciprocal compensation from the inception of the Interconnection Agreement through September 30, 1998. The term of this Settlement Agreement is for the life of the existing Interconnection Agreement, which expires on March 6, 2000. Even if the term of the Interconnection Agreement is extended, or MCI adopts another Interconnection Agreement with a longer term than MCI's, the term of the Settlement Agreement cannot be extended beyond the Interconnection Agreement's current expiration date of March 6, 2000. BellSouth's monthly payments to MCI subsequent to September 1998 cannot exceed one hundred ten percent (110%) of the amount paid by BellSouth for the month of September 1998.

FCC Proceedings

The Parties agree that the Settlement Agreement will not be affected by subsequent FCC decisions. In fact, The Parties enter into this Settlement Agreement anticipating that the FCC will issue a subsequent decision on the ISP traffic issue. The Parties are free to participate in any FCC proceeding opened to consider the appropriate treatment of ISP traffic, or to appeal any FCC decision.

No Admission of Liability

The Parties accept the consideration exchanged herein as a complete compromise of matters involving disputed issues of law and fact and assume the risk that the facts or law may be otherwise than they believe. It is understood and agreed between The Parties that this settlement is a compromise of disputed claims, and any payment, credit or refund is not to be construed as an admission of liability on the part of either of The Parties, and by whom liability is expressly denied. In addition, The Parties agree that any payment made pursuant to the Settlement Agreement is not a reciprocal compensation payment for ISP traffic.
